

Feng Shui Mandalas

Feng Shui means “wind and water” and is the ancient art aligning objects with the forces of nature to enhance our lives. Energy or “qi” (pronounced “chi”) is all around us. And that energy can be harnessed to improve the quality of our everyday lives.

The energy in our homes can enhance or impede our: prosperity; fame and reputation; romance and relationships; family; health; creativity and children; skills, knowledge and wisdom; career; and helpful people and travel.

Wisdom/Personal Growth

In feng shui, the home is divided into 9 sections called “ba guas” which influence different aspects of our lives. For example, if you wanted to attract new love into your life, you would concentrate on enhancing the energy in the back right section of your home which effects relationships and love. You attract good energy, first by clearing the space and to remove negative influences, and then by intentionally placing items in the space that represent the outcome you want to achieve.

Prosperity	Fame	Romance
Family	Health	Creativity
Wisdom	Career	Helpful People + Travel

(Main Entrance to Home or Room)

Mandala comes from a Sanskrit word meaning "circle" or "completion". Mandalas can be used as spiritual teaching tools, to establish a sacred space, or as an aid to meditation.

Feng Shui Mandalas - Wisdom/Personal Growth

Feng Shui Mandalas were created to be used as tools to enhance the positive energy in a space.

This Feng Shui Mandala was created to promote wisdom and personal growth. The artist took photos of objects representing success and respect, arranged the images into a collage and then transformed the collage into a mandala.

To enhance to enhance wisdom, place this mandala front left section of your home or room.

For More information on Feng Shui or Feng shui Mandalas, visit:

www.fengshuitoolkit.com